EXPAREL

The medication that helps reduce the opioid crisis

We understand the critical role we play in the lives of our patient's safety while they are in our care. We also take the potential impact we can have after patients are discharged and return home very seriously. The use of opioids to treat pain has long been the standard of care for post operative pain management. And while this treatment is effective, it can also have serious negative side effects, particularly for our younger patients.

We are pleased to offer EXPAREL within our practice. This non-opioid option allows us to treat just the surgical site with pain relief that lasts up to 72 hours. Once the numbing effects of EXPAREL are diminished, patients can generally treat any remaining pain with Tylenol or Ibuprofen. All but eliminating the need for opioids. We encourage you to visit our website to learn more about EXPAREL and how it will benefit our mutual patients.
